Me Tells a Story of Refusing the Secrament to a Clergyman and His Wife Which Indicates Confession to be a Prerequisite of Communion at Lianthony

Abbey-Not Paying Expenses. Increasing interest in Father Ignatius's afternoon services at Cooper Union is mani-festing itself among men. Yesterday afternoon there were more men present than on any previous occasion; they formed fully one-third of the large congregation. There were more well-dressed women among the remaining two-thirds than ever before.

Some of the requests for prayer which Father Ignatius read after the opening hymn were very voluminous. One was entirely too long to read, and in the curtailed form in which it was

Pray that a church may be built for poor people on the great east side up town. Poor people have 55 stay at home on Sundays and read the papers because there is no room for the fashionable churches. The churches in New York are not meant for us. One request for prayer was accompanied by a theological question: "If all Christian people are saved, how was Judas lost?" Father ignatius's answer was that Judas was only pailed to an office and not to eternal life. Here are some other requests as announced by Father Ignatius: Pray for me. I want to have God in my life. I have been ruined in business and my health s shattered. I am a slave to morphia which was prescribed by the doctors as a medi-

"A priest asks prayers for himself; that God may give him grace and prevent him from becoming a castaway."

Father ignatius a comment on this was that the word castaway was wrongly used. As used in the Bible the original Greek meant one who was untried in the race; not one who had run the race and lost. "No one can be a castaway from salvation."

After reading the requests for prayer. Father Ignatius said he had "a word to say to the gentlemen of the press."

"He careful to report my teaching correctly." he continued. "This morning one of the papers make me say, "Every one who follows the example of Christ has a right to call himself a saint. Now, that is the opposite of what I said. We follow the example of Christ not that we may become saints, but because we are saints. Wo are not saints because we follow Christ's example, but we follow His example because we are saints."

To make up for this criticism he announced that the reports of "the gentlemen of the press had brought salvation to souls." As an example, he toid of meeting a stranger in a railway carriage in England who, on learning who he was, said he had been converted by a report of one of Father Ignatius's sermons printed in a Brighton paper, which he had accidentally read while waiting for a train.

Assuming a devout posture he now prayed:

"May God bless my kind newspaper friends and grant that they may always get the gist of what I say, so that it may be spread abroad in eshape which shall bear fruit."

After thus praying for newspaper men he prayed for the congregation generally. His sermon on the text:

"They embraced the promises of God, and confe-sed that they were strangers and pilrium on the carth."

This was the sermon's beginning: "On Monday we learned that to become Christians we must not be of the world."

After thus praying for newspaper men he prayed for the congregation generally. His sermon on the earth. We are Christians. We were strangers on the earth. We may be in the world, but we must not be of the world."

that I we are Christians. If we are strangers on the earth, we may be in the world, but we must not be of the world."

After dilating on the way fashionable Christians failed to realize that they were, or ought to be, strangers on earth, he told this story:

"A clergyman and his wife once came to Lianthony monastery for the purpose of baving communion at the sacred shrine. Now, we never allow persons to partike of the sacrament at the monastery without having a talk with them first to see whether they are in proper condition. Fo I sent word to the elergyman that when it was convenient. I would see him in the church. We met hi the same tuary, with the monastic grating between us, and I saked whether he knew himself to be saved. He answered that he didn't know himself to be it he only hoped he would be. I told him the holy sacrament was only for those who are saved. It was not to save people, but only to help people who were saved. I then asked what arswer his wife would make to the same question. He said his wife believed as he did. I asked whether he went to dances and the theatres. He said he didn't make it a rule of going to either but he thought in oharm torbee a good play. Certainly not, ertainly not, I said; but brethern, I now say to you that when a man has once believed the bromises of God he becomes a stranger to the things of earth. It is thed evil himself who makes Christians believe they can accommodate their relicion to the world."

Father ignating force to tell of his ultimate action on the information obtained, but, when asked the sequel to his story after the sermon, he said: "We sent them both away. Neither the elergyman nor his wife was allowed to have the sacrament."

In his appeal for money to pay the expenses of the mission at the end of the service, he can be a failed to be commoditionally the first meeting of the stockholders of the stockholders of the size of the stockholders of the size of the stockholders of the stockholders of the size of the stockholders of the stranger to the said hi gregations at his Brighton mission. He is by no many paying expenses.

Father lenatives sermon at the evening service in St. Michael's Church was on the miracle of the loaves and fishes. The 5,000 men who them fed and were satisfied, he said, were a type of the vast multitude which Jesus had fed and satisfied spiritually. Only He can feed the soul and satisfy its longings. Father Ignatius told of a man who said he had tried every religion in Birmingham, where he lived the loman Catholic, Church of England, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, and finally the Unitarian. He was not satisfied until he had tried Jesus, Whom he found at Father Ignatius's mission. Alluding to the anostles proposing to send the multitude away, he said:

"Toor, dear fellows: they wanted a quiet Svening with their Master. Peter must have been in a nice passion when the multitude wouldn't go, and considered them such a mission of the number of the multitude.

wouldn't go, and considered them such a muistance."

Speaking of the number of the multitude, "5,400 men, besides women and children," he said: "If there were 5,000 men thore what a lot of women there must have been!"

He said in another place: "The bad reople were nost attracted to Christ. The good people didn't like Him, that is the people who considered themselves rood. And it was the sinners and not the righteous whom He came to Sayo."

The world, he said, was a desert like that in which the loaves and the fishes were multiplied. The soul hungered for spiritual food, has had long ages and yearnings which nothing in this world could gratify.

You can't go into a shop and buy $1,000 worth of peace. Supposing you went to one and said, I want $15,000 worth of rest for my soul. They would only lauch at you and think you canzy. With your money you can gratify your justs by going to the theatre and seeing the filthest of bullets, but only true religion will satisfy your soul.

the fithest of bullets, but only true religion will satisfy your soul."
He told of an initial who said he thought himself as well off as Christians, who didn't seem very sure of happiness in a future life. I said to him. My dear uncle—he was my uncle—I know I'm saved." To make up apparently for acknowledging having an initial for an uncle, he told of another relative who, although a dergyman, donned a lockey's costume and distributed tracts on a race course. In his collection appeal he said:
"Our expenses are four times as great hero as in England, and the offerings are four times as little."

The service ended with the hymn, "All Hall the Power of Jesus's Name." and the prayers for the Episcopal Advent senson.

SENATOR PADDOCK'S FUNNY SPEECH. Mis Private Secretary Mixed Some of Mis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10,-Senator Paddock has been made the victim of the usually harmless Congressional Record. The Senator delivered a speech on Monday relative to the existing Indian troubles, and got into quite an argument with Senator Voorhees. The reporter of the Record called at the Senator's room later on for the manuscript of the speech. He carwhich the Senator's secretary, who is correspondent of a Western paper, had written for a telegraph despatch, and included the entire matter in the report of the Senator's speech. The despatch consisted of several interviews on the subject of the rending sensational election in Idaho. The result is that the Senator is credited with what is probably the most delivered in the Senate. It reads in part :

"A great many foolish things have been said and a great many absurd exaggerations have been made in connection with this whole business. While the Tribune is taking no part in the interesting Senatorial fight in Idaho, it is due to its readers that they should be informed of the sentiment prevailing in Congress in reference to the struggle. I have formed of the sentiment prevailing in Congress in reference to the struggle. I have taken the trouble in the last few days to personally interview more than fifty Senators and Representatives on this subject."

Then follows several interesting interviews in the midst of the Senator's talk about Indian affairs.

Speaker Reed said: "Why, there cannot be any question about Dubois, can there? His remarkable personal influence and popularity made idaho a State. I confess that he very strongly influenced me."

Senator Flatt said: "Why, of course the State of Idaho will select Fred T. Dubois as its first Senator. He has carned it by the most earnest, faithful, and intelligent labor for his people. Western electors are not ungrateful. He is a clean-out, active, brainy man, and no one here doubts his election.

Senator Culiom-Doubt about Fred Dubois's election. Nonsense, His people are not built that way. An abler Territorial delegate has not sat in Congress in the last twenty years. I have known him since a boy, and his record is a remarkable one. Mark my words, he will be the first Senator chosen.

Senator Paddock—Who will Idaho select? Why, Dubois, of course. If they do not I will almost regret my vote for Statehood. Idaho would have been a diamembered territory today if it had not been for Dubois. He is honest, able, brainy, and unremitting in his work for his neotile.

Senator Paddock is very angry at the ricitor-

Senator Paddock is very angry at the ridicu-lous situation in which this speech places him, but he has not yet decided whether to kill his secretary or the official reporter of debates.

BANKER HORNER ARRESTED.

The Affair Grows Out of the Hale of a Ferelgu Lottery Boud, Edward H. Horner, a banker, of 88 Wall street, was arraigned before Justice Schefer in Newtown resterday accused of obtaining money under false pretenses. Joseph Bremer, resident of Newtown, was the complainant. Bremer alleges that he purchased a foreign bond of $100 from Horner, to be paid for in in-stallments of $10 per month. He afterward found that the bond's par value represented only $10.

Constable Wermich of Newtown went to New York to arrest Horner. He says the clerk in charge of Horner's office threw him out. He succeeded, however, in making the arrest, Horner pleaded not guilty, and he was released on $200 bail for examination next Monday. In addition to his banking business Mr. Horner is engaged in the embroidery business at 86

Mr. Horner is a dealer in European bonds issued on a lottery basis and sells them through agents. He was found at his home. 124 East Eighty-fifth street, leat night. He said his arrest was an attempt at blackmail. He said this nerest was an attempt at blackmail. He said that one of his agents had arranged four years ago to sell Bremer $100 bond, to be handed over when Bremer had paid up the whole amount in $5 installments. Bremer, he save, paid up only $40, and consequently didn't get his bond. Mr. Horner heard nothing of the matter until a Newtown lawyer called on him and demanded the $40 bask. Horner refused, and on Monday he was served with a warrant which he said accused him of a larceny of $40.

BRIDES OF A DECEMBER DAY.

UNDER MISTLETON AND MOLLY MISS DI SEREGA WEDS AN ENGLISH ENIGHT.

Frederick Frankland, Saronet, of Thirkle by, to the Happy Man-Bishop Heary C. Potter Performs the Coremony Before a Pashtonable Throng in the Church of the Incarnation-Other Fashionable Events.

The wedding of Miss Charlotte di Zerega. only daughter of John di Zerega, and Sir Fred-erick William Francis George Frankland, Baronet, of Thirkleby, took place yesterday after noon in the Episcopal Church of the Incarnanation, at Madison avenue and Thirty-fifth street. Mistletoe and holly, brought acros he ocean from the Earl of Warwick's estate in England, and other Christmas greens were unsparingly used in the decoration of the chancel. The ceremony, which was fully shoral, was conducted by Bishop Henry C. Potter, assisted by the rector of the church, the Rev. Arthur Brooks. Programmes on which were printed the hymn and the anthem were handed to the guests as they entered.

The bride's father gave her away. Her wedding gown, a creation of Walk's of Paris. was couled from an old Venetian portrait. The skirt and demi-train of white satin were trimmed with flounces of old point lace, alternated with panels embroidered in an emblematic design of orange blossoms and lilles of the valley. The high bodice was made with a rolling Venetlan collar of silver, enriched with gems and elaborately trimmed with slashes of crêpe de Chine and point d'aiguille. The long sleeves were slashed at the shoulder and elbow with crepe de Chine, embroidered with brilliants, pearls, and silver. The full court train fell from the shoulders. It was of white velvet, on which was an embroidered vine of brilliants, pearls, silver and lilies of the valley, caught up by Renaissance bows and bordered with white fex fur. Two pages, Masters Bichard Perry and Victor di Zerega, cousins of the bride, in Venetian costumes of white satin, tunics, jewelled girdles, and white silk hose, carried the train. Miss di Zerega's vell was of point lace, and was caught up with several ornaments, including a diamond crescent, a gift from the bridegroom; a diamond cent, a gift from the bridegroom; a diamond tiara, a present from Mrs. Augustus di Zerega, the bride's grandmother, and a diamond of nament, a gift from Mrs. del Monte.

Instead of a bouquet the bride carried a silver-bound prayer book. The bridesunaids were Miss Grace Sneiling, Miss May Furman, Miss May Barron. They were gowns of the Venetian style, of turnouse blue and creps de Chine, the corsage being trimmed with pale pink coralchifon and Venetian pointlace. They were sashes of chiffen of the same color and broad-brimmed hats of blue velvet dressed with pink estraich plumes. Each carried a silver-bound prayer book presented by the bride, and each displayed her gift from the bridegroom, a pink coral and diamond scarfpin.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. E. T. Swann of England as best man. The ushers were: Messrs, Ledward De Peyster, Livingston, liarry Le Grand Cannon, Richard di Asrega, brother of the bride; John C. Furman, Augustus Clarkson, and Lloyd Warren. They redeved jewelled scarfpins from the bridegroom. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the brides parents, 38 West Fortyeighth street, Although the invitations for the church numbered over 2,000, only the relatives of the bride and a few Intimate friends After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's purents, 38 West Fortyeighth street. Although the invitations for the church numbered over 2,000, only the relatives of the bride and a few intimate friends were invited to the house. Amourthe presents, which were shown in one of the drawing rooms, were several tea and dinner sets of silver, a sliver travelling dressing case, and a pink pearl and diamond pin from the bridegroom; a pair of moonstones, diamonds, and nearls, with a coronet in brilliants, from Mrs. Duncan Pell: a gold inlaid sugar set from Miss Barron, silver bonbon dishes from Mrs. Theodore di Zorega, and a silver tea service from Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Berry, which formerly belonged to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Berry. The housymoon will be passed in Canada, where the bridegroom has a number of relatives. The bridegroom is the tenth baronet.

The young couple will sail for England next month.

The bridegroom is the tenth baronet, having succeeded his father. Sir William Frankland. Colonel in the Royal Engineers, when Is years old. Since the time of Edward III, the family have owned acres of land in Yorkshire, but at present their estates are heavily encumbered. About 1745 Sir Charles Henry Frankland, an ancestor of the bridegroom, was Collector of the port of Bosson and afterward was consul-deneral to the court of Portugal. Lisben. During the earthquake in that city in 1755. Sir Charles was buried in the ruins for more than an hour. He was rescued by the lady who became his wife. This incident has formed the subject of one of Oliver Wendell Holmes's poems, entitled "Agnes," Sir Thomas, brother of Sir Charles, married Sarah Ethett, granddaughter of the Chief Justice of South Carolina in 1743. Sir Frederick, the bridestoom, is in his 23d year.

Miss di Zerga is well known in New York society, and has passed several seasons in London. Her mother is a cousin of Herry Wall. On her lather's side the bride is the great-great-granddaughter of Baron Von Bretton, who received his title from King Christian of Denmark in 1667.

Trevor-Schleffelin. The marriage of Miss Margaret Helen Schieffelin, daughter of George R. Schieffelin, and Henry Graff Trevor, eldest son of John B. Trevor of Yonkers, attracted to Grace Church resterday a number of the best-known people in New York society. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, the rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Schwab, rector of St. Mary's Church, Manhattanville. Livingston Beckman was best man, and Messrs, Valentine Hall, Harry Le Grand Cannon, Amory S. Carbart, Court andt Van Rens-elaer, William H. Morgan, and Alexander Webb, Jr., served as ushers. They were single pearl scarfpins, presented by the bride groom. Miss Mary Talmage Trevor, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Constance Schieffelin were the bridesmaids. They wore pretty gowns of white silk, trimmed with silver and wreaths of pink roses. Each carried a bunch of Catharine Mermet roses and point lace lans, presented to them by the bride. The bridal robe was of white sath, trimmed with point lace. The point lace voil was fastened with a thara of diamonds and a diamond reseent, gifts from the bridegroom. The bridal bouquet was of lines of the valley and orange blossoms. Besides this, the bride carried a silver-bound prayer book, engraved with her monogram.

The reception was held at the bome of Miss Schieffelin's lather. S East Forty-flith street. Among the guest were Mir, and Mrs. Newbold Morris, Miss Morris, Mrs. Heavy Coster, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Morris, Miss Henry H. C., Bowers, J. J. Senora Laverno's Romantie Story Brings to Light a Curious Parallel.

A young man called at the Spanish Consulate resterday to obtain the address of Cecil Watkins, who told the Consul-General on Tuesday that one Tornando Uberto Lavero, a Spaniard, had married her and then run away with $69.-000 of her money. The roung man who called at the consulate said that last April he met a young woman in the street who told him that her name was Cecil Watkins. She was rather tall and had light brown hair. She said that her father died in the South several years ago, and left her a large estate. A handsome young Frenchman fell in love with her, and they were married in Philadelphia. The Frenchman said he bad eastles in France, and after getting possession of her money he deserted her. The young woman said further that she was then corresponding with a young man who lived in Spain. She said she was anxious to regain her French husband and her property, and asked her new acquaintance to make impuries at the French Consulate or write to France for her. The young man thought from the description of Schera Lavero published in The Eur yesterday that this may have been the young woman whom he knew as Cecil Watkins.

Lawyer Enlestler said yesterday that he had advised Schera Lavero to hire private detectives to discover the whereabouts of her husband and then prosecute him criminally. WINDOW BMASHING IN SEASON.

About This Time of Year Look Out for This is the season for window-smashing thieves. The holiday displays tempt them, and when the stores are closed at early morning or late at night they break in the plate glass with a cobble stone or a brick, and make off with whatever they can reach conveniently off with whatever they can reach conveniently. They usually wait until the clatter of a truck or an elevated train drawns the crash of glass. Three windows have been broken in Barclay street within the last two weeks. The window of George P. Schinzel's shoe store at No. i was the first to be broken. A lot of shoes were stolen. The thieves were caught and sentenced to two years in prison. A few days ago the window of Albert C. Salle's burber shop No. S. was smashed and some razors were taken. The thieves were not caught. The big plate glass window of Charles 1.6 Biban & Co.'s umbrella store at 1A was broken at 6 o'clo-k yesterday morning and three gold-headed umbrellas valued at $12 each were stolen. Frivate Watchman MeGee and the roliceman on post did find out that the robbery had occurred until nearly an hour afterward.

Rumored Resignation of Gen. Parker. ALBANY, Dec. 10.-There is a rumor affoat here that Brig.-Gen. A. J. Parker, in a moment of pique, handed his resignation to Adjt-Gen Porter. Gen. Parker would neither affirm nor deny the rumor. The cause for this action, such was taken, was because the Admian General refused to make Gen. Parker on General retused to make Gen. Parker custodian of the new armory built for the Tenth battalion this year at a cost of $100,000. Gen. Porter turned the keys over to Liout, (Gd. Fitch of the Tenth battalion, thus making him custodian.

Caught in a Hurricana

BALTIMORE, Doc. 10.-The bark Amy, Capt, Klages, from Rio Janeiro Oct. 30, arrived to day. ACCUSES O HER ACCUSES.

Is Abraham Simmons, Late of London, Subject to Railucinations?

Abraham Simmons was arrested some time ago, on complaint of James Cowen, an usber of the Star Theatre, Brooklyn. Cowen says Simmons has been dogging him about from place to place for about two years, telling scandalous stories about him, and making his livelihood precarious and his life miserable. Simmons intimates that the usher eloped to this country from England with Mrs. Simmons about two years are. According to the story of Mr. Simmons, he was then a prosperous business man in a London suburb, and Cowen boaried with him. Through the efforts of Simmons Cowen, it is said, has been discharged from two dry goods stores in Brooklyn, and he was in danger of lessing his place at the theatre when he caused Simmons's arrest.

Simmons's lawyer, in the belief that his cilcont might be laboring under a hallucination, had the matter brought to the attention of the City Court, and Simmons will be examined by medical experts. He says he has correspondence from England which will prove the truth of his charges against Cowen. this country from England with Mrs. Simmons

WORTHINGTON CO., 747 B'way, N. Y.

For 1891

Has made the most important literary engagements ever entered into by any American periodical or newspaper.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVEN-SON'S South Sea Letters will begin with the New Year. They will appear only in THE SUNDAY SUN, and they will constitute the great literary feature of 1891.

A new story by the same celebrated author, who writes "the Best and Purest English of our time," will be published during January in THE SUNDAY SUN.

H. RIDER HAGGARD'S "Eric" will also begin in January. It is more of a fighting drama than even "King Solomon's Mines," a Norseland epic of tremendous fire and imagination. Its equal has not been seen. It will appear only in THE SUNDAY SUN.

Later in 1891 THE SUNDAY SUN will print the novel of the year by the Coming Man of English fiction, the writer of 1891, who, with the publication of this astonishing novel, will have arrived. OTHER ORIGINAL LITERARY PRATURES ARE EL PECTED FROM THE FOLLOWING CONTRIBUTORS:

W. D. Howells, T. A. Edison, John Swinton, A. Jay Cummings, George Meredith, William Black, . W. Clark Russell, Andrew Lang, St. George Mivart, Conan Boyle. Rudyard Kipling, Norman Lockyer, And many other Renowned Writers.

THE SUNDAY SUN

FOR THE ENSUING TWELVE MONTHS WILL PRING MORE NEWS AND MORE BRILLIANT LITERATURE OF THE HIGHEST CLASS AND BY THE MOST DIS. TINGUISHED OF LIVING WRITERS, THAN ANY OTHER PERIODICAL IN THE UNITED STATES.
